HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

COMPENDIUM OF ILLUSTRATIONS IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN is a collection of 2,228 pictures of many periods, culled from 131 known sources and a few private sources. These pictures have been subdivided into 96 categories.

All of these pictures are in the public domain. They derive from magazines, books, private collections, and pictures copyrighted by Hart Publishing Company, now released to the public for general use.

According to copyright law, all pictures printed before 1907 are now in the public domain. Pictures in this book which were initially published after 1907 derive from uncopyrighted sources, or from publications whose copyrights have been allowed to lapse through failure to renew, or from books released from copyright by Hart Publishing Company.

So as not to clutter a caption, the source of the picture is given an abbreviated designation. Full publication data may be found in the Sources section, in which all sources are listed in alphabetical order, with the full title of the book or magazine, the publisher, and the date of publication. The Sources section commences on page 379.

Captions appear beneath all those pictures which require specific identification. For example, "mood-pictures"—depicting anger, horror, grief, etc.—are not captioned; as the Romans put it, res ipsa loquitur, the thing speaks for itself.

This book contains a voluminous index, set forth on page 385. A picture may have several listings in the index. For example, a picture of a cathedral would be listed under the general heading of Churches, Mosques, & Temples, and may also be listed under the name of the town or city in which it stands, and perhaps under some special name by which it is known.

All index entries set in full caps represent one of the 96 major groupings in the book.
